The Oude Meester Ekurhuleni Comes Alive Jazz evening is bringing the 2010 calendar down with something very special for our patrons on Friday 10th December 2010. After nine years of good music good friends and pure friendship that works, the Princess of Africa is heading to Ekurhuleni for the very first time. This one is for all our loyal patrons as a send off to Christmas break before we get back to open the 2011 calendar. On the evening patrons can brace themselves to sounds of young and sensational PUTUMA & VUYO TYOLO. Our in-house Music Academy of Gauteng jazz Orchestra will open the stage for evening before we get to be taken down memory lane by the princess of Africa. One is very excited and humbled to hear the excitement coming out of sis Yvonne Chaka Chaka as the show stopper for our 2010 calendar. Over the years we have been trying to secure the services of Yvonne Chaka Chaka but her busy schedule and her much travelled scheduled clashed with our dates. The closing of the 2010 calendar couldn't be a better one for our patrons.

The Umqombothi and I am burning up singer has promised to offer patrons lots of her old songs and new once to remind them how far she comes with music. In her own words, sis Yvonne mentioned that she is particularly happy to be part of the Birchwood series simply because the people who attend the events are those who supports their music through buying CD's and DVD's. She believes these are the people she would break her back to give great show to. We encourage our patrons to book their seats as soon as possible as the event is already receiving high volume of pre bookings from corporate.

The Birchwood Hotel will continue to pamper our patrons with weekend vouchers for them to experience the hotel first hand. Our partners DSTV, The city of Ekurhuleni, Oude Meester and KAYA FM will be bringing Christmas goodies for our patrons who are lucky to be drawn. Booking lines are open for our patrons can book online as well.
